AN INDEPENDENT PAPER.
(Established 1870)

This paper will always fight for progress and reform, it will not knowingly tolerate injustice or corruption and will always fight demagogues of all parties; it will oppose privileged classes and public plunderers; it will never lack sympathy with the poor; it will always remain devoted to the public welfare and will never be satisfied with merely printing news, it will always be drastically independent and will never be afraid to attack wrong, whether committed by the rich or the poor.

HE FAILED AS A LAWYER.

Hoke Smith, senator from Georgia, and former member of President Cleveland's cabinet, recalls that thirty years ago he was an ambitious lawyer laboring for a practice in Atlanta. He says he clearly remembers another young man about his own age, pale, tall, studious, with a law office in a nearby building. Mr. Smith and this young man started at about the same time; slowly as clients came to Mr. Smith, they came even more slowly to his colleague. Later this young man became President of the United States. Young Woodrow Wilson failed as a lawyer and that moved him along a course which made him President.

The lesson to be drawn from this is that a failure should not discourage the young fellow starting out in life. The man who proves a gifted teacher may have had none of the necessary qualifications for success in the law; a highly skilled mechanic may fail in literature; a great musician may be stupid in business. One must find his bent of mind and then try himself out. There must be aptitude, if one is signally to succeed.

CANCERS AND TUBERCULOSIS CURED IN OGDEN.

The secretary of the Interior is about to issue an order withdrawing all radium lands of the public domain from entry. The object is to conserve the radium as a means of treatment of cancer, the rays of the rare metal having proved to be a cure for that terrible disease which today is eating at the vitals of one in every ten persons.

Secretary Lane, in his appeal to congress for authority to conduct explorations and researches for radium, says: "Radium is found in ores carrying uranium and vanadium, which are

WHEN AN OGDEN MAN SEES SOUTH AMERICA.

Chas. Humphris of Ogden has been around the world, but he continues to have the wanderlust, so about the middle of January he will start for South America. He first will visit Brazil and then cover much of the territory that Theodore Roosevelt has passed over. He will see more of the interior though and may enter Uruguay and Paraguay.

That whole country is undergoing rapid development and to us offers more attractions than any other part of the world as a field in which to go sight-seeing. There are cities springing up that in our school days were not on the map and others that had a place in the geographies but were unimportant, all of which today are progressive, thriving centers of population.

How many of our readers, without refreshing their memories by consulting an atlas, can tell where Bahia is or give any information as to the size or importance of the city? And yet Bahia in northern Brazil has a population of nearly 300,000. Roosevelt describes it as follows:

"Bahia offers a lovely sight from the water. It is a large city, placed on a steep hillside and following the curve of the bay. Tier after tier the houses climb the hillside from the water's edge, and on the crest against the skyline are etched the tops of beautiful tall palm trees and the double spires of the innumerable churches. It is a very old city. Civilization came to these shores long before any of our own ancestors settled on the New England coast or along the banks of the James, the Hudson, and the Delaware. But it is not only old. It is also very new. It is now feeling the thrill of the forward movement which has made itself so powerfully felt in so many parts of South America.

"Few cities in our Western United States are being improved more rapidly than Bahia. The business and residential streets are being widened; trolleys are running everywhere, and automobiles are jostling the queer pack-animals laden with country produce. Old buildings are being ruthlessly torn down—sometimes almost too ruthlessly—to make room for whatever improvements are necessary.

"During the course of our morning's drive we stopped at the School of Medicine, going through the buildings and meeting a few of the professors and students. This is not only one of the best schools of medicine in South America, it is among the really distinguished medical schools of the world. It has been in existence over a century, and its high standing and the great value of its productive work have been recognized again and again by all competent authorities both in Europe and in the United States.

"Altogether the impression left upon me by Bahia was not only one of beauty and picturesqueness, but of eager determination to succeed in manufacturing and in commerce." Mr. Humphris will see Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo and Buenos Aires, cities that compare favorably with the largest in the United States. Perhaps in beauty there is no place in this country that rivals Buenos Aires, the metropolis of Argentina. This city is growing rapidly and now has a population of over a million. The entire country is undergoing a wonderful development and the rush of immigration from Europe is almost equal to the arrivals in the United States.

Americans are beginning to find investments in the pampas of the republic. Many of our western cattle-men and sheepmen are gaining possessions in Uruguay and even in interior Paraguay and are once more renewing their western experiences when this country was being pioneered.

The Standard will endeavor to have Mr. Humphris tell its readers of the out-of-the-way places, as he deviates from the beaten path of travel on his journey in the New World of South America.

MUTUAL CONGRATULATIONS.

This world is getting more practical every day. Getting broader. The people understand one another better.

Here in our beautiful city we are working together for what? Of course there is a financial reason for all business, but under this cloak of energy there exists today a spirit of good feeling that we have never experienced before.

Look at the building improvements that have been made during the year that is now drawing to a close. Note the holiday spirit that pervades this town for the past week. And did you ever note the booster spirit of this town? It is the envy of our southern neighbors, and you just watch this town for the next few years. No inland town west of the Mississippi river has any better prospects. Then, aren't you thankful that you were destined to live in a town that is located in the best climate in the world, that has so many beautiful drives and natural resorts to entertain one? We are.

Forty-four years ago this country was in this intermediate country and it is our judgment that Ogden is destined to be the leading jobbing town of the intermountain west.

We wish our many old and many new friends who have helped Ogden to be what she is today, a happy, prosperous and healthful New Year, and thank you for the patronage bestowed upon us in the past and we hope to merit a continuance of the same in the future.

THE WORLD'S MARKET NEWS

WALL STREET.

New York, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Stocks advanced generally today, although speculation for the rise was not aggressive. Sentiment favored the long side and the market was not influenced by poor financial statements of railroads in various sections, the reductions ordered in freight rates in the middle west and the stiffening of call money with the approach of the year-end.

Stocks which were foremost in yesterday's decline, particularly Reading and Canadian Pacific, led the advance today. The announcement of the receivership for certain stores and interests of the Siegel Stores corporation gave the market a setback for a time, but the recession was not severe.

Bonds were steady. The market closed weak. Traders became active on the short side when it was seen there was no immediate incentive to put up prices further. Reading, Canadian Pacific and Amalgamated were particularly weak.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 30.—Although wheat showed some weakness at the outset today, prices seemed inclined to harden afterwards. Opening prices ranged from 1-8@1-9 lower to 1-4 advance. December continued easy, but the more active options made a moderate gain. Tightness in the December delivery gave firmness to the rest of the corn market. Prices started 18@1-4c off to 1c up and steadied not far below the top level of the opening figures. Shorts in the oats trade covered on account of the corn bulge. When the bulls were satisfied, however, the market relaxed.

First sales of provisions varied from the same as last night to a decline of 2-12c. A setback in final wheat quotations at Liverpool brought about a subsequent downturn here. Reports of Canadian freight rate reductions were denied, and the probable removal of the wheat duty was reiterated. The market closed easy, 1-8 to 1-8@1-4c under last night.

A decided reaction in corn followed the result of free selling based on fine weather. The close was weak 1-2@5c to 1c net lower.
